

Incarnate Goddess

In the beginning there was darkness. Out of that darkness came a unified presence of love who created each of the planets and the four elements: wind, water, earth, and fire. These elements were in constant disarray with one another and were brought to certain planets so that they could balance and harmonize with one another. Aiysha is the representation of divine splendor on earth that holds the ancient knowledge of life. This wise spirit is the mother to every aspect of existence on the earth frequency. She has watched over the earth since its inception and incarnates from time to time to show its inhabitants true beauty and love. Since ancient times she has descended to the earth plane as a dappled grey Arabian mare. She is often seen grazing in a desert oasis by Bedoni tribes inhabiting different regions of Saudi Arabia, Egypt and Jordan.

High and mighty she turns her head gracefully to the left, acknowledging a passing breeze. Her nostrils flare out taking in the essence of the world around her. Her wise chocolate-colored eyes hold the true meaning of life. Aiysha glides over earth's deep green pastures with unconditional love flowing from her heart. Her twitched ears are specifically attuned to receiving the frequencies the Earth generates as it turns slowly on its axis. Aiysha nickers in response to these frequencies to bring balance to the earth with her presence. Her long flowing salt and pepper colored mane and tail flutter in the wind as if attesting to her age and wisdom. Her high carriage and posture signal a divine and regal presence to her incarnation.

She is known to commune with the elements of earth to restore balance. At times, she strikes her golden hooves at the earth and springs of water come forth from the ground below. Life creates Life. In times of great downpour, she rears up at the sky drawing fire from the heavens above to the earth, invoking transformational change. Life creates life. Aiysha stirs the earth with her breath as she sweeps gracefully across green pastures. That air swirls into the heavens and brings energies from the worlds above and below into the earth plane. Life creates life. When the world has become too still and unchanging, she inspires the earth into action by taking a mighty stride; leaping across continents causing the earth to shudder under her mighty hooves. Life creates life.

For thousands of years, it has been a Bedouin tradition to watch for her galloping across the horizon. The great powerful Arabian mother goddess communes with the elements of earth to bring balance and harmony to the world. Likewise, she also communes with all the beings of the earth. Her presence is said to stir the hearts of humankind with compassion, love and the desires to be caretakers of the environment and planet. Aiysha is said to visit the earth frequently during times of great trouble to inspire a new vibration of energy, healing and hope.
